Hallucinogens, basically speaking, are drugs which cause the user to have hallucinations, or dreams while fully awake. Imagining that things are happening, that are not really happening are usual reactions, and lead to responses from the user that cause destructiveness, wild belligerence and insane actions. Why would anyone even consider experimentation with drugs like this? Users often admit, when trying to get off these drugs, that it was all for the "fun" of getting "high", and was brought about by the "do-your-own-thing" craze that our society has seemingly encouraged.

There are many other halfucinogenic drugs including morning glory seeds, STP, Mescaline, DMT, DET, Psilocybin, Bufotenine, Ibogaine, LBJ, THC, and even ordinary nutmeg. The use of some of these dates back to Indian cultures, when they were used in ancient religious rites. But, surely there is no need in modern America for people to live in a dream world. HOW DOES IT FEEL TO BE A DRUG ADDICT?

Many years ago if you wanted to learn how it felt to be a drug addict you'd visit a ghetto or skid row. Today addicts can be found in any and every section of American society including the most affluent. Of course, people hooked on drugs, especially when "high" are not going to sit down and tell you the true when "high" are not going to sit down and tell you the true facts of how it feels, but those who have come to the terrifying realization that they are addicts and need help, tell facts that should awaken the most doubting cynics on the subject of the dangers of drug misuse. Following are some questions put to drug addicts after starting treatment for their habits, and the answers they gave the interviewer. Q. What affect did your use of drugs have on your grades in you are temporarily out of it, the feeling is the same as being in hell. The physical and mental torment is unbearable, and sometimes you think you'd kill your best friend if you had to just to get another fix." Q. Did your good friends remain friends after you were hooked?

A. "At first yes, but later those who were not on drugs themselves just drop you. They can't stand the crazy things you do. So, you build your friends among your own kind, the other drug users, and tell yourself to hell with everyone else." Or old, who finds himself being tempted into a drug habit should do the same---ask a person who has been through the tortures of the drug scene. Ask the fellow who has lost his job. If the addict you ask is now trying to quit by undergoing treatment, the answer will always be the same---DON'T BE AN IDIOT!
